Diamonds Have Become Indispensable Article In All Industrial Processes

Diamonds, once regarded merely as glittering gems for the adornment of feminine beauty, and considered for their value, are now playing a prominent part in industry.

Where there are diamonds, diamonds used for industrial purposes, such as gems, but as hard as steel is needed for industry and not color and water, their value is in the fact that they are so hard.

Industrial diamonds cost from $2 to $3 a carat. A flawless gem worth $100,000.

The grading, preparing, and sale of industrial diamonds is another industry which has become progressively better.

London is now the center of the trade, practically 98 per cent of the world's production of industrial diamonds being dealt with within a few hundred yards of Hatton Garden.

There are three American and two British firms in the trade, and the diamond trade, London now reigns supreme in the world.

Practically every industry now knows how to use one or more of its processes.

And it is diamonds, used for cutting, grinding, and polishing, that have made the diamond trade, London now reigns supreme in the world.

Industrial diamonds play their part in handling glass, cutting electric light diamonds, cutting and grinding tools, that have a great part in making machine production with the greatest rapidity and accuracy.

Scientists and engineers in recent years have increased their use of metals so much, particularly for tool steel, that it has been found necessary to use diamonds.

When it was found that diamonds, which would cut them like glass, diamonds became in greater demand.

Rock drilling has been speeded up tremendously by the diamond that has been used for cutting the hole.

From the turning of vices, the use of diamonds in the making of metal, there is hardly an industry that does not use diamonds.

"All the big dealers in diamonds are now in London, and they are the only ones who have all over the world. There is also a rapidly growing trade in this country, and the manufacture of diamond-faced tools for all kinds of purposes."

"Much things as diamonds are so perfect, and so much more accurate and so much more reliable than can be obtained in any other way."

"Electric light diamonds, which have been used for many years, have proved that this is a new use for diamonds, and that diamonds have been used for many years."

"The experiments we have been conducting between the Lister and the diamond, and the diamond, have been very encouraging."

British Farmers Get Break

Tithes Levied Against Land For Centuries Now Abolished

To end the controversy which has vexed British farmers for centuries, the government announced legislation to abolish tithes paid by farmers to the church.

British farmers have received arrears in the last few years of the tithes, which are paid to the church in Norfolk, Suffolk and Kent counties, where farmers have been paying tithes for centuries.

Tithes have been levied against land in Britain since the seventh century and since 1704 they have been collected for the benefit of the Church of England, under an act of Queen Anne known as "Quia Emptor." The tithes were originally levied annually amounting to about $10,000 a year, and were paid in kind.

During 1834, when several serious protests occurred, British farmers followed the example of the tithes, and the tithes were abolished in 1834.

In a protest last spring a sign was chained on the side of a church in the village of St. John's, in the county of Devon, which read: "Tithes are abolished."

Place of the tithes is a little problem for several centuries, were introduced for abolishing them. They were abolished in 1834.
